Nidec to Open IR Office in U.K.

Nidec Corporation (“Nidec”, NYSE: NJ) announced today that it is opening a new office in London on October 1, 2005, which engages in investor relations (“IR”) activities.

Purpose of the New Office:

Nidec has been actively promoting relations with investors across the world until today. In December 2003, Nidec established its first overseas IR base in New York City to ensure greater accessibility to the world's largest investment communities and enhance the visibility across North America and Europe. Nidec's new IR office in London, with a focus on European investors, is intended to provide company information and help broaden Nidec's foreign investor base. Its activities involve financial briefings to investors and financial analysts, developments of new investor base, and the gathering of local market information. Nidec is the first Japanese electronic component manufacturer to place IR representatives in New York and London.
